Coaches Submerge In Raging Torrent As Bridge Collapses

Death Toll Estimated at Forty But Final Figures Will Show Seventy Missing—Stream, Ordinarily Dry, Was Swollen by Cloudburst and Roar of Rushing Water Could Be Heard 3 Miles—One Car Swept 100 Yards and Occupants Were Engulfed—Pathetic Scenes as Many Scream For Help While Clinging Frantically to Wreckage—Spectacular Rescues Effected.

(By The Associated Press)
DENVER, Sept. 28.—A special to the Post from Casper, Wyoming, says one of the submerged cars of Burlington train number 30 which plunged into Cole Creek near Casper last night, has been pulled from the stream and eight persons were found alive in it.

57 PERISH, LATES TREPOT.

NORFOLK, Neb. Sept. 28.—Information received in Chicago and Northwestern offices here shortly before noon was that 57 persons perished in the Burlington wreck near Casper, Wyoming. Burlington and Northwestern tracks run on opposite sides of the river at the scene of the wreck.

LIST OF NAMES UNKNOWN.

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Twenty-eight out of 32 Pullman passengers and six out of 27 day coach passengers are known to have escaped death when Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway train number 30 plunged into a torrent last night near Lockett, Wyoming.

At noon today not a single name of the two score or more persons believed to have been drowned had been received at the general offices here.

CASPER, Wyo., Sept. 28.—The loss of life late last night when Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train number 30 went through a bridge over Cole Creek, 14 miles east of here, is estimated at approximately 40 persons. The stream, ordinarily dry during the summer, was swollen into a raging torrent by heavy rains of yesterday and the roar of rushing waters over the coaches could be heard three miles.

One passenger coach was swept one hundred yards into the Platte River which at that point is more than a mile wide. It is believed that no passengers in that coach were saved because by the time the rescuers could have gone to their assistance, the coach had rolled over on its side and become completely submerged.

It is believed that it will be 24 hours or more before many bodies can be taken from the submerged cars. Most of those drowned may have been washed out of the cars because of the terrific current of the stream.

Several bodies were removed from the submerged cars this morning but names of victims are still lacking and the full casualty list probably will not be known until waters from the cloudburst recede to the point where coaches now completely submerged can be entered. It is understood that the first bodies removed were taken to Glen Cross, across the Platte river. It is probable that several bodies were washed down stream and will never be recovered.

A relief train which returned to Casper during the night brought back some 30 survivors, most of them from rear Pullmans of the train which escaped the wreckage. Many of these people, minus their clothes were still in a car at the station here this morning.

Among those believed to have perished in the wreck were train conductor Guy Good, of Cheyenne; Ed Spangler, engineer of Great Falls; and Ole Maiken, fireman of Casper.

Although one of the highest ticket sales in years was reported here by the Burlington railroad, it was believed that the final list of persons aboard the train would show possible seventy persons missing.

The wreck occurred at an isolated spot near Lockett and it was not until hours afterward that some details of the accident became known here. The train plunged into the creek swollen to many times its normal depth because of cloudburst and heavy rains and passengers were engulfed in the raging torrent that poured through the channel with little or no chance of escape.

A wrecking crew sent from Casper found upon arriving at the scene of the tragedy that the work of attempting to rescue those caught in the crash was practically impossible during the night.

Fire Prevention Week Plans For City Perfected

Steps were taken yesterday afternoon by the Public Welfare Committee of the Chamber of Commerce towards the observance of National Fire Prevention Week, which this year begins October 7th and which will be running during the week of the Fair.

The committee decided to go seriously into the matter of fire prevention before the people of the community, various committees being appointed to work out the details.

James T. Catlin, Jr., and R. K. Linville were appointed a committee to arrange for a booth at the Fair Grounds where helpful literature will be available. John B. Harvie and Rev. J. M. Shelburne, D. D., were appointed a committee to arrange for speakers during Fire Prevention Week in the churches, the schools and in the theaters.

W. B. Smith and H. Taylor were appointed a committee on publicity.

Fire Chief Mitchell will be asked to prepare for exhibition in the city schools a fire alarm box in order that the school children may be instructed how to act in an emergency.

Mr. Neal, who was born in Caswell county, N. C., was 51 years old and was brought here several weeks ago for treatment. He was found lying suffering from a complication of diseases. Mr. Neal, who was well known in Caswell and Pittsylvania was married 25 years ago to Miss Alma Hodges, who survives, with one sister, Mrs. J. B. Powell, of this city. MOVEMENT STARTED TO REBUILD SLEDD CHURCH

Four Methodist ministers of the city and six representative laymen from the local Methodist churches met last night at the Wesley House for the purpose of discussing the building of a new church to replace that now known as Sledd Memorial Methodist church. For some months the pastor of the church, Rev. J. W. Rustin, has been stressing the need of larger quarters for the church and well known Methodist institution which was founded years ago under the auspices of Main Street Methodist church and which has done a good work in that section. With the growth of the Sunday school within the present conference year—since Rev. Mr. Rustin was assigned the charge, the Sunday school has grown from 200 to 275 members and the imperative need of larger quarters has recently been stressed upon the presiding elder and the people of the church.

Last night's meeting was called for the purpose of discussing in a general way what might be done and to take the first steps towards the accomplishment of this object. Those attending the meeting were first served supper by the ladies of the Wesley House—an institution which has been a factor for great good in that immediate vicinity during the past few years.

Following the supper Rev. S. J. Rattan, presiding elder called the meeting to order and gave facts and figures supporting the argument that the time has come to build a new church.

Seek Rehearing In Bond Issue Before Court Of Appeals

Counsel for School Board Has Not Given up Fight—Issue Can Be Placed Before People at Any Time—School Board to Consider Problem Further.

It was announced this morning that counsel for the city school board in the litigation following the school improvement bond issue will apply for a rehearing before the Supreme court, the request being made that an opportunity be given these attorneys to appear before the Supreme court in order to argue the points of law involved orally. This is not infrequently done and it was made plain today that attorneys against whom the Supreme court decision do not concur in the door has been definitely closed.

The set back suffered by the proponents of the $350,000 school improvement bond issue and incidentally the $50,000 sewer improvement issue through the decision rendered yesterday has not discouraged them from further effort. It was indicated today that further steps will be taken by the school board looking to the sanction of the city council in calling another election for the purpose of placing the question once more before the people but not before an opportunity has been given for an intensive campaign.

It was learned today that the finance committee of the school board will hold the question which is now sustained by the Supreme court revealed that this is not necessarily the case.

Mr. Alkon upon request made a hurried examination of the law bearing on the question.

Less Concern Over Bavarian Situation

German Chancellor and Cabinet More Anxious Over Impending Adjustment of Foreign Relations.

(By The Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Chancellor Stresemann and the members of his cabinet were less concerned today over the Bavarian situation than was to be expected. The immediate future holds in store for the government with respect to the impending new adjustment of its foreign relations.

With Adolf Hitler and his "fascist" following subdued for the moment, the Berlin government is satisfied that the Bavarian authorities, in collaboration with the commander of the federal troops, will be able to control the situation there. Government reports this morning indicated normal conditions prevailed in Munich, Nuremberg, Augsburg, and other points in Bavarian territory.

Chancellor Stresemann has resumed active contact with the envoys of the entente and was in conference last night with British and French ambassadors on the Berlin situation. The subjects presumed to have been discussed were the question of the early resumption of formal negotiations and the attitude of the allied powers toward the German reparations proposal of June 7.

The government, it was stated, has presented to candidates for the German ministry of Finance, Dr. Brüning, a list of names for consideration. It is not expected that any of these names will be returned to the German people as German diplomatic representative in Belgium.

STEPS TO RE-ORGANIZE LEGION AUXILIARY TAKEN

First steps were taken yesterday afternoon towards the re-organization of the American Legion Auxiliary, at an enthusiastic meeting which was held in the auditorium of the Danville High School at four o'clock. Approximately forty women, all eligible for membership, were present at the meeting which was addressed by Post Commander W. A. H. Cousins and Major Henry A. Weisman.

The result of the meeting was the decision to apply for a new charter for the organization under the name of the American Legion Auxiliary instead of the "Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion" under which the organization has hitherto been known. Temporary organization was perfected and a membership committee named and definite steps taken towards the application of a charter as soon as a roster of charter members has been made up.

The temporary officers elected were:

Mrs. W. T. Paxton, president.
Mrs. C. C. Johnson, vice-president.
Mrs. Richard P. Moss, secretary.
Mrs. A. R. Carrington, Sr., treasurer.

The membership committee is headed by Mrs. J. Turner Hamilton and includes Mesdames L. H. Brown, George G. Temple, W. B. Lewis and A. M. Henderson.

Quarter Of Million Pounds Of American Leaf Is Destroyed

Cablegram From Tokio Received by Department of Commerce Reveals Extent of Quake's Damage to Leaf in Storage—Two Cigarette Plants Wiped Out.

Two of the largest cigarette factories operated by the government in Japan together with about one-fourth of the stock of American grown tobacco in storage there were destroyed in the recent earthquake and fire, according to cable advices received today by the Department of Commerce and relayed to The Bee by its Washington correspondent who a few days ago was asked to secure some definite information on the loss sustained.

A week ago the Department of Commerce cabled to Tokio for some information eagerly sought by the tobacco interests in this section but no reply was received. The correspondent then prevailed on the Commerce Department to renew enquiries and another cable was sent, a reply being received which will in a measure answer a question which has been sought more especially by the tobacco dealers in Virginia and North Carolina.

While the cablegram received from Tokio was not specific as to the actual amount of tobacco destroyed it has been found possible to arrive at an approximate estimate from the statistics available at the Department of Commerce. It is estimated that 2,500,000 pounds of leaf tobacco, most of it being the Virginia-Carolina variety, was destroyed. Department of Commerce figures indicate that at the time of the earthquake disaster, ten million pounds of American grown tobacco was in storage in Tokio. The Japanese government's admission that one-fourth of this stock has been wiped out indicates, therefore, that two and a quarter million pounds has been lost.

The size and capacity of the factories destroyed are not given in the cablegram but Washington officials are of the opinion that they were among the largest, if not the largest, of their kind in the world. Cigarette factories operated in Tokio by the Japanese monopoly are the greatest in the country.

These factories manufacture principally bright cigarette tobacco grown in Virginia and the Carolinas, and the stock of American-grown tobacco which was destroyed was also principally of that type.

It is understood by officials of the Commerce Department that the Japanese government had about a two years' supply of American-grown tobacco on hand at Tokio. For several years up to 1913 the Japanese government purchased about 3,500,000 pounds of American tobacco, and in 1920 the purchase was seven million pounds. But in 1922 the purchase was reduced to about two million pounds. This would indicate that there were about 10,000,000 pounds of Virginia and Carolina bright tobacco in storage at Tokio at the time of the earthquake and that about 2,500,000 pounds were destroyed.

A prominent Danville tobacco dealer only a few days ago said that all of the local tobacco men were very anxious to discover the size of the loss in tobacco expected to have been sustained as result of the earthquake, fire and flood. He said that if the loss was a very heavy one, it might be expected that the Japanese government would place orders in the bright belt for tobacco this season in order to recoup the loss from the catastrophe. Pemberton and Penn. Inc., who have represented the Japanese monopoly in Danville for years, were also anxious to discover what the loss had been, but it was learned from one of the principals of the firm that all efforts to determine the loss had been directed through other channels had not been successful. The firm was aware, however, that the loss had been considerable.

Japan has been of recent years increasing its consumption of the American types of tobacco ever since opium was banned by governmental decree. The Japanese people have turned from the opiate to the less harmful cigarette and cigarette smoking has been steadily increasing in Japan. Japan produces a type of tobacco, but it is very light and fragile and has no body and requires an admixture of American-grown tobacco to give it the proper smoking qualities. The Japanese in Japan's tobacco have cited these facts as evidence that there will be an increased demand in the bright belt markets for leaf during the season.

While the cable received in Washington gives the loss in Tokio, no mention is made of the loss in Danville. It is believed that the loss in Danville was not as heavy as the loss in Tokio. The loss in Danville was a type of tobacco, but it is very light and fragile and has no body and requires an admixture of American-grown tobacco to give it the proper smoking qualities. The Japanese in Japan's tobacco have cited these facts as evidence that there will be an increased demand in the bright belt markets for leaf during the season.

SAYS N. C. MOST FOREMOST STATE IN AGRICULTURE

(By The Associated Press.)
RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 27.—That North Carolina is the most fortunate of states agriculturally was the terse statement made by Frank Parker, statistician of the Co-operative Crop Reporting Service of the Department of Agriculture, on his return to his office here from a tour of crop inspection through the western part of the state. Mr. Parker and his assistant, W. H. Rhodes, Jr., traveled by automobile through Moore, Rutherford, Transylvania, Jackson, Buncombe, Caldwell, Watauga, Wilkes and Surry counties. Throughout the trip they maintained counts and classifications of all fields over one half and acre in size on both sides of the roads they traveled.

This state has, perhaps, the best average crop and livestock conditions it has ever experienced, said Mr. Parker.

Through various agents of the Co-operative Crop Reporting Service Mr. Parker is enabled to keep in close touch with agricultural conditions in all parts of the state. He summarizes information on crop conditions sent to his office from the various sections of North Carolina and makes public the results, and his conclusions for the benefit of the farmers of the state.

"During the summer months," said Mr. Parker, "the Piedmont section, particularly the southern counties of that section, suffered from very dry conditions. This resulted in late plantings and growth. For the past six weeks this area has experienced good seasons, which have resulted in good corn, grasses and other crops. Cotton has suffered most, but, being a dry weather plant, the July crop was good. The boll weevil has gotten all the squares made since August 1 in all of the main cotton belt, counties of the state. The peach crop was much shorter than expected, even during the harvesting season. The mountain counties generally have had good crops and the agricultural apple crop, or those produced outside the commercial orchards, is better than has been expected."

"In the northern counties the buckwheat crop is the largest in years and is in fine condition. The wheat and oat crops for the entire Piedmont area have made the best yield in several years. Tobacco is generally good for this area, a heavier yield being expected on an increased acreage."

The general impression throughout the Piedmont and mountain counties is that the average of crops is very high. Reports indicate that the same is true in the Coastal belt. Prospects are very favorable for not only good production, but good prices this fall. The farmers are generally optimistic, although they dislike to admit it.

EVIDENCE MAY CLEAR GREECE

(By The Chicago Tribune Service.)
ATHENS, Sept. 27.—An Ipirote bandit, named Momos, volunteered sensational evidence to the international inquiry commission at Janina last night, which, if corroborated, proves Greece's innocence of the assassination.

According to the outlaw's statement, General Tellini was killed for personal vengeance for acts he had committed when stationed at Valona and the officers killed the other four men so there would be no witnesses to the crime.

The inter-allied commission proceeded immediately in automobile to Argirocastro to investigate Momos' story.

Momos formerly served in the Albanian gendarmerie and then came to Greece when the Athens government promised an amnesty for former crimes committed in Greece on his promise to denounce the Cavaria traitors.

The Athens government is asking a postponement of the decision of the ambassadors council in Paris and the payment of indemnity to Italy until the inter-allied commission completes its inquiry into Momos' allegations.

U. of Va. Opens 100th Session

UNIVERSITY, Va., Sept. 27.—The hundredth continuous academic session of the University of Virginia was formally opened this morning when Convocation exercises were held in Cabell Hall. Dr. Douglas Freeman, of Richmond, was the chief speaker of the occasion.

President Edwin Anderson Alderman announced an increase in enrollment above the corresponding day 1935 in all departments up to date. Taking this as a basis he predicted that the registration for the session of 1933-34 would reach 1900 before the end of the University year.

Intermediate honors, which were awarded for the first time, were conferred upon twenty students of the college who have passed all the work of their first two years with an average of 85 or above. These students will not, in the future, be subject to the rules limiting absences from the University.

The twenty holders of intermediate honors are James Porter Baker, Jr., of Hillsboro, Va.; William Howell Cooper, Jr., Petersburg, Va.; Newton Van Lear Cowan, Williamsburg, Miss.; Hamilton Darby, Jackson, Miss.; Albert Brown Dickey, Mounds, Okla.; Arthur Kendrick Ehle, Arlington, Va.; George Dandridge Gibson, Richmond, Va.; John David Glenn, Shepherdsville, Ky.; Howard Glenn, Richmond, Va.; George Taylor Gwathmey, Norfolk, Va.; Carl Frederick Happel, Fredericksburg, Va.; Comer Johnston Kimball, Atlanta, Ga.; Charles Pickens Knight, Valrico, Fla.; Thomas Pickens, Jr., Richmond, Va.; Houston Evans Riley, Richmond, Va.; John Ritchie, III, Washington, D. C.; Walter Brooke Stabler, Wilmington, Del.; David B. Wallerstein, Richmond, Va.; and L. E. Meade Williams, Richmond, Va.

Dr. Freeman, who is editor of the Richmond News-Leader, spoke of the needs of higher education for better support from the people and from the commonwealth.

Among the gifts to the University announced by President Alderman were portraits of the late Richard Henry Whitehead, dean of the department of medicine, painted by Alpheus Cole and given by members of the medical faculty and students, and of Dr. Philip Alexander Bruce, painted by Prince Pierre Troubetzkoy and given by the Alumni Association in appreciation of the services of Dr. Bruce in writing the history of the University.

A check for $700 from the students and alumni of Minor Inn, of the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, for the establishment of a fund for expansion of the law library as a memorial to the late Raleigh C. Minor was announced as were the following other gifts: $10,000 from an anonymous donor for the establishment of the Richard Henry Whitehead scholar-ship in medicine; $1,000 from Dr. Seale Harris of Birmingham, Ala., for the establishment of a scholarship in memory of his father, Dr. Charles Hooks Harris; and $200 from Jacques H. P. Taylor, of Richmond, to the forestry department.

Growth in every department of the University was announced by Dr. Alderman. In the college the registration up to last night was 1011, an increase of 61 over the same day last session. In the department of education an increase of 25, in graduate studies 80, an increase of 29, in engineering 160, an increase of 3, in law 229, an increase of 3, and in medicine 188, an increase of 23.

Of the 54 women that have registered, 4 are in the college, 30 in education, 11 in graduate studies, 3 in law and 6 in medicine.

President Alderman said that the University was faced with the task of training 5,113 men and women during the academic year. Of these the summer quarter brought 2,581, while 519 are enrolled in extension classes and 80 are student nurses. The total is made up by adding 1980 as probable total for the winter session.

"The true hope of the world is the scholar," said Dr. Alderman as he welcomed the students to the opening of the one hundredth session. "I would place all emphasis upon the fact that the ultimate reason for the existence of every university in the world is to make scholars."

"The thing the scholar is looking for is always there. Win it and it is yours and mankind's forever. I would beg you that you be your imagination be touched by the quiet scholar who stands behind all the world's great reformations. My appeal to you young men and women of 1933 is to see the beauty and power of scholarship."

"Last year I devoted upon our purpose to enlarge and enrich the field of social sciences here in their natural and logical home. I now redeclare that the youth of the south today, by

NOT SURPRISED AT MARTIAL LAW IN GERMANY

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, in a statement today discussing the developments in Germany, declared he was not surprised "at the statement that martial law has been declared in the German Republic or that there is open secession and revolution in some of the states."

"So far as I could see," the senator stated, "Germany was the least prosperous of all the European states which I visited. She is suffering from enemies within and without. Her criminal industrialists, led by Stinnes, are almost as much her enemies as the French led by Poincare. Stinnes and his crowd are in absolute control of the German government and have been since the republic began and they are exploiting the German people for the purpose of filling their own pockets."

"Therefore," he continued, "with attacks by enemies from within and without, revolution seems unavoidable. My hope is that this revolution will not be communist in character. Its effect on the reparations question cannot be predicted at this time."

MAKES REPLY TO WILSON LETTER

(By The Associated Press.)
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Senator John K. Shields, in a prepared statement released here today in reply to a letter from former President Wilson recently published in Tennessee newspapers, declared the letter was "not calling for and not published in the interest of the Democratic party but for the sole purpose of injuring me with the people of Tennessee."

The Wilson letter contained the phrase: "I regard Mr. Shields during my administration as one of the least trustworthy of my nominal supporters," to which the senator today made reply that "if that Mr. Wilson's accusation of untrustworthiness my duties as a senator honestly and faithfully to the best of my ability, he is absolutely wrong."

Expressing profound sympathy for Mr. Wilson in his great and protracted affliction, Senator Shields said: "We cannot cherish resentment for anything he may now say. He is immune from criticism."

The senator charged any man to point a single instance in which he had failed to follow the Democratic platform and asserts that the head and front of his offending Mr. Wilson is found in his opposition to the propositions that the United States become a member of the League of Nations and take a mandate under the league for Armenia.

BRINGS NEWS OF KNUD RAMUSSEN

(By Chicago Tribune Service.)
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27.—Birgit Smith, who has returned as the first courier from Knud Rasmussen, Arctic explorer, tells Mr. Rasmussen's route from Cape York. He stayed on a Danish island in the Winter of 1931 and January of 1932 and then started west for north Canada. He stayed at Chesterfield Inlet last Winter and started this Spring for Baker Lake. He found Esquimaux, named the Willows Tribe. He then started for Hikuligjuak Lake and here too he found the Willows Tribe, descending from Indians. The language here is the same as in Greenland, although there is no connection between the tribe and Greenland. The tribe never had heard of Greenland but their old myths tell of some nomads wandering north to greater hunting fields.

Birgit Smith found proofs that Greenlandian Esquimaux descended to the Willows Tribe, again descending to Chippewa Indians. The expedition has found proofs that no white Esquimaux is living.

WHISKEY CURSE ON DRUG STORES

(By The Associated Press.)
BOSTON, Sept. 27.—"The greatest curse which has befallen the retail drugstore of the country, was putting whiskey and alcohol into their hands," O. Schmeider of Kansas City, asserted today at the convention of the national association of retail druggists here. Mr. Schmeider's statement was made in reply to one made by Charles F. Mann, of Detroit, favoring tax free alcohol.

"We cannot afford to have tax free alcohol in drug stores," Schmeider said. "The time is coming when you will be ashamed to say you are in the retail drug business. We must legislate liquor out of the drug business. It is a failure handled as it is. Liquor is going to be made and sold by bootleggers."

"We can go to the government and suggest that it establish dispensaries all over the United States to sell liquor at $2.50 or $3, a quart. The consumer will get good liquor and the bootlegger cannot live. The government will make its revenue and will cut down our taxes."

Describing conditions in Kansas City, Mr. Schmeider asserted that there are 400 drug store proprietors and that one rule only was demanded, that he must be a law abiding citizen and run his drug store according to laws of Missouri.

"We were not able to find 75 of the 400 who were law abiding citizens," he said.

Mr. Mann, in the address which precipitated the discussion said he felt the drug trade of the country was committed to the high price of alcohol and that the average jobber and manufacturer takes the enormous tax placed upon it.

ROTARIANS HOLD INTER-CITY MEET

(By The Associated Press.)
ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 27.—The great intercity meet of Rotary clubs, held today at Rockledge Inn, was attended by more than 200 Rotarians representing eight Virginia cities, Roanoke, Radford, Pulaski, Covington, Hot Springs, Lynchburg, Lexington, Buena Vista and Christiansburg, and one West Virginia city, Bluefield.

The meeting was termed the most successful of its kind ever staged by the Rotary club in this section of the country, and was marked by the high spirit of good fellowship and enthusiasm.

The purpose of the meeting in creating a closer and better relation between groups of representative citizens in the neighboring towns was well carried out in the after dinner speeches when a representative from each club competed for the honor of giving the biggest boost to "the other fellow's town."

Rotarian Jim Frantz, of the Roanoke club, was awarded a set of valuable books offered as the prize, when nine judges agreed that he was able to produce more facts and figures in boosting Buena Vista than any of his competitors in boosting other towns.

Roanoke was given a splendid boost by Rotarian Tom Johnson of the Christiansburg club, who praised the schools, public utilities, churches, buildings, residential sections and everything in the make up of the city, but stressed above all the progressive spirit and splendid type of its citizenship.

Rotarian Bernard McClaugherty, Bluefield, declared that Lynchburg, like ancient Rome, founded upon its seven hills, had proved an asset to the state and community with its hoard of wealth, its progressive inhabitants and center of industry.

JURY REFUSED ENTRANCE

(By The Associated Press.)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 27.—The Jefferson county grand jury investigating reported convict brutalities at the Banner mines, today were denied entrance to the mines' leased convict camp preventing the investigators from getting an inside view of working conditions there.

The jury was accompanied by Solicitor James Davis, who issued a statement later that "our men purpose in going to Banner was to receive an actual refusal from officials in charge. Efforts to enter Banner must now be confined to legal measures."

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider Tanlac the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly nature's most perfect remedy," is the far-reaching statement given out for publication, recently by Mrs. I. A. Borden, 423 Pontiac Ave., Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal."

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects."

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating lavishly and able to work."

"These two instances that are typical of the wonderful merits of the medicine. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

Tanlac is for sale by all good drug stores. Accept no substitute. Over 7 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.—adv.

Bavaria Seethes With New Troops

(By The Associated Press.)
MUNICH, BAVARIA, Sept. 27.—Although quiet is reported to prevail throughout Bavaria, Dr. Von Kahr, the military dictator, has brought additional troops into Munich so as to be in readiness for any emergency. The dictator has absolutely prohibited all assemblages of adherents of Adolf Hitler, the national socialist leader, and has declared that he and General Von Lossow propose to maintain order in Bavaria and carry out to the full the instructions of the Bavarian government.

Premier Von Kulling today notified the Berlin government that Dr. Kahr has been appointed to his present position owing to his influence with the nationalist organizations and because the Bavarian government was convinced of his absolute loyalty. The central government thereupon appointed General Von Lossow as military commander in Bavaria, and gave him instructions to cooperate with Dr. Von Kahr. Von Lossow has been in command of the Bavarian Reichswehr.

Dr. Von Kahr this morning conferred with the representatives of all the Bavarian patriotic associations, including the Hitler organization and demanded assurance that if he allowed the meeting scheduled for the evening they would guarantee that order would be observed. Hitler was not able to give such assurance whereupon Von Kahr announced that the meetings were prohibited. Hitler and the others vainly endeavored to induce Von Kahr to withdraw the ban. The government considers the forces at its disposal adequate to suppress any outbreak but believes that Hitler and the other radicals will not allow matters to go the extreme. It is well known, however, that General Ludendorff, formerly Von Hindenburg's chief of staff, is behind the Hitler movement.

PEEL SHOCKS OF QUAKE AGAIN AROUND KERNAN

TEHERAN, PERSIA, Sept. 27.—Severe quake shocks again have been felt at Kernan, where much damage has been done. Tremors also have been experienced at Bujnurd, Raisenjan, Bain and Anar. It is reported that smoke is issuing from a mountain near Bujnurd.

Attacks Figures On Child Labor

(By The Associated Press.)
CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 27.—Characterizing as "a tricky and underhand use of statistics," the recent announcement of figures of the children's bureau of the department of labor showing more than 35 per cent. increase in child labor since the announcement of the federal child labor law, David Clark, publisher of the Southern Textile Bulletin, made public today a letter of protest, which he had written Secretary Davis.

Mr. Clark pointed out that the periods selected for comparison were the first six months of 1922, when there was unemployment and idleness, and the first six months of 1923, which composed a period of unusual industrial activity, and declares that "there is no evidence that there was a greater increase in the employment of young people of five to sixteen years of age, than of older persons nor is there any evidence that there was any employment in violation of state laws or outside of the limits of the recent federal child labor law."

"It was a tricky and underhand use of statistics, which conveyed to the public the idea that child labor had increased 35 per cent. since the federal child labor law had been declared unconstitutional and yet there was no evidence whatever that any of the increased employments was due in any way to the cancellation of the federal child labor law," said Mr. Clark's letter to Mr. Davis.

An examination of the statistics showed that the larger part of the 35 per cent. increase was in states that have restrictions as high as or higher than the federal child labor law. It was a contemptible piece of work and we are informed that government funds paid for the publicity."

COMMUNISTS ARE DRIVEN OUT

BY LARRY RUE,
(By The Chicago Tribune Service)
SOFIA, Sept. 27.—(Radio.)—The Communists were seized and driven out of Kritichin, Bania, Kostenez, Istabandola on the railroad between here and Philippopolis and Ferdinand, a village of 5,000 north of Sofia, during the last twenty-four hours. Although they succeeded in cutting the railroad between here and Philippopolis in two places within fifty kilometers south of Sofia and made a sally twelve kilometers north, attempting to tear up the tracks there also, the minister of communications announces that communications have entirely been re-established. This, however, was not done before the Orient express from the South was delayed sixteen hours and a couple of wagons on the Burgas train, coming in the same direction, was derailed.

The government reports that not more than fifty armed Communists created the trouble between here and Philippopolis, while not a great number more took part in the Ferdinand coup.

The agrarians gave no assistance to the Communists, as arranged and the latter lost their nerve and permitted the train to proceed and fled to the hills, where they are now being sought.

Dinner at Country Club
At the country club on Thursday evening, a host of representative members of Danville composing a Bible class which is led by Mrs. W. W. Ayres, gathered to celebrate the beginning of the winter activities of the church school of Main Street church, of which they are members.

The complete enrollment of the class, numbers 40, of that number 65 answered to roll call last night and took their places around the beautifully appointed table, where dinner was served to them and their guests.

Mrs. Oliver Dudley gave an appropriate toast to Mrs. Ayres who responded in charming manner. Mrs. T. A. Smoot, Mrs. John Swanson and others made short speeches, expressing for the class, their appreciation of the beloved leader. Miss Christine Burns, in response to repeated calls, made a most delightful talk, expressing in her own charming way the joy at being together on this happy occasion.

After-dinner games were entered into with enjoyment and the musical selections completed and closed one of the most enjoyable social functions of the fall season.

Educational Classes to Open
The Y. W. C. A. has had educational classes since the opening of the organization. The purpose of these classes is to help girls and women help themselves. The classes most in demand have been those in which millinery and dressmaking have been taught. Numbers of girls and women in Danville owe the accomplishment of making their attractive hats and gowns to the efficient instruction received in the Y. W. C. A. classes. Classes in the art of hat-making and dressmaking are now forming. There are classes in each of these branches for both day and evening.

The new folder containing detailed information of the Y. W. C. A. educational classes is just out. The scope of the educational work, is to be somewhat enlarged this fall. A class which cannot help but make an impression upon the girls and women of Danville is one in home economics. Mrs. Charlotte Richmond at classes since the opening of the will instruct those who desire to be better informed in the science of cookery. Mrs. Jacobs is a woman of broad experience in her line of work. The instruction given will cover just the things both the beginner and the housekeeper will most want to know. The housewives' class will meet twice a week for ten lessons. The evening class will meet once a week. The fee is nominal one for each class. There will be a room for large groups, for the instruction will be given in the "Y. W." recreation hall. Those desiring a register for the home economics classes are urged to do so at once.

Another class which will appeal to those who love art and all useful articles for the home is that of

The fishing pond on the farm of W. N. Ruffin, near Purley, N. C., which was established about eighteen months ago by a group of Danville men, was washed out by an unprecedented rain which visited that section last Friday night. The weight of the rain swept away part of the dam and in the gush of water a large quantity of bass and perch with which the pond was stocked had been carried away. Thousands of fish, some of them weighing a pound and a half were found lying dead in the weeds. Some twenty-five Danville men had an interest in the pond, which was owned by Hamilton Vane, W. B. Foster and Thomas Fox were instrumental in establishing the fishing pond on which more than $2,600 had been spent.

The opening of Schoolfield's new $7,500 band stand on the Y. W. C. A. association was witnessed last night by an unusually large attendance of Schoolfield and Danville people. It was estimated that at the height of the concert between 2,500 and 3,000 persons were gathered about the stand. The stand is a masterpiece of construction and is generally one of the finest instrumental concerts ever given by a community organization. The seats arranged in front of the band stand were all taken and others stood on the street and in other parts of the enclosure to hear the Schoolfield band which has been developed highly by Prof. Joseph Vezetti during the past several months. The program was pleasing to all and afforded an opportunity of showing the full scope of the band, both in full orchestra and in more subdued passages featuring local singers. The unusual acoustic properties of the band stand were clearly demonstrated, it being observed that those who could not get within good range of the stand could hear the sections in detail from a considerable distance. Hundreds of automobiles were parked in the vicinity. More than 40 uniformed players appeared on the platform.

A special morning service will be held at the First Baptist church on Sunday morning starting at 10:30 o'clock at which time the joint state and Sunday school promotion program will be unfolded. The service has been prepared by J. L. Skaggs, director of religious education. It is proposed to outline the year's work which will be done by every department of the Sunday school by the people of the church in order that the congregation may be acquainted with what it is proposed to accomplish. State mission features will follow. At the night service Rev. J. M. Shubert will preach a special sermon on "The Fool."

No change was noted overnight in the condition of Miller Andrews, small son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Andrews, who was injured Wednesday when struck by a truck on Paxton street. "The condition of the child is about the same" was the statement given out at the General Hospital at noon today. This means that the little boy is still in a critical condition as reported yesterday. A fracture of the skull, was a serious one.

The Danville Lions with their Honorary will gather tonight at half past seven o'clock at the Country Club supper. This is the last of the night and a special programme is being arranged for the evening.

The revival meeting at Mount Cross school house which is being conducted by Rev. John N. Raggsdale and a band of faithful helpers, is growing in interest. Congregations are larger each evening. Services will be held Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Sunday at 3 and 7:30 p. m.

Col. W. T. Hughes staged another fox hunt this morning which was attended by a number of invited guests. And old fox was trailed and caught within 50 minutes of the start. The dog, the best of the breed, had recently. Twenty-four dogs took part in the hunt which started at Tinsley's dairy and which headed towards Fall Creek. Within the past two weeks the hounds have caught 11 foxes. Among those out bright and early this morning were D. A. Overbey, E. E. Perkins, L. C. Battin, Judge E. J. Harvey, Byron Homer, Custer, J. Tinsley, J. M. Smith, George Harper, Posie J. Hundley, J. C. Blair and a number of farmers from the surrounding section.

RANDOLPH-MACON
IS HARD AT WORK
The football squad of Randolph-Macon is undergoing strenuous work-out in preparation for the initial contest with the University of Maryland at College Park on Saturday. A new spirit has become manifested and a feeling of confidence pervades the squad. Randolph-Macon is to emerge from the athletic slump which she has undergone for the past few years. The advent of the new Coach, Gus Welsh from Washington State, where he has enjoyed unusual success, has fostered the spirit of confidence that Randolph-Macon is on the threshold of one of the most successful years she has ever experienced.

The morale of the squad is splendid. They practice with a vim and determination that bodes ill for their opponents on the gridiron. There is noticed already a snap and precision in the Varsity drill that is remarkable this early in the season. Every man's attention is focused with grim determination upon the task which he faces.

On Saturday the team will journey to College Park to meet the University of Maryland. Facing one of the most difficult schedules of any team in the state its supporters confidently expect Randolph-Macon to make

(Special to The Bee)
PARIS, Sept. 28.—What has become of the old-fashioned collar that tended to its business and really complied with Webster's definition—an article worn or placed about the neck?

Well, it is seen occasionally, but on the whole, collars have passed on beyond that simple, primitive state. Here for instance is an example of unrestrained ambition and an unexpressed desire to attract attention. This collar not only is placed about the neck and shoulders but about the neck, shoulders, back, waistline and hips as well, and it uses as much material as would be required for a blouse.

And yet, isn't it charming and original?

It is a good example of what you may expect this winter.

For some time, we have neglected the neckline. We sloshed our frock across our collarbones until it resembled a boat in shape, then finished it with a bias band, and considered we'd done our duty.

This season designers are again remembering the possibilities of fancy collars and the transformations they are able to make. And there is a decided tendency to fasten the collar in the back instead of the front. Oh, just for variety, I suppose.

There is also a decided revival of the lingerie collar, made of net or organdie. It may fasten on the side if you prefer. And fichus, frills and all the other charming accessories for the throat are to be revived and made more lovely than ever before.

The very high collar is being worn by the demurest women of Paris and is one of the real sensations of the sartorial year.

one of the best showings among the smaller colleges of Virginia and North Carolina. At the present time four teams are seen in action every day. Most of the attention, however, is centered around the heavy and fast aggregation labelled "Varsity."

In its present form the team will average more than 180 pounds from tackle to tackle. Hales, Trillinger, Blackwell, Kent and Captain Smoot from this big and strong set of forwards. Bell and Eason on ends, both of 170 pound weight, will hold down the wings. Bell is a wizard at snagging the plegman from the air. He is a daily winner. Captain Smoot will occupy his old position at right tackle and the others will be played by Kent, who has had the benefit of a year's seasoning.

The mainstay of the backfield will be Crouse, Marks and Rash. All of whom are veterans and experienced. Crouse is a "Triple Threat"—he can run, pass or kick with equal facility. The return of McLemore was a letter man two years ago will give added strength to the backfield. Stuart is also showing up well. Markin, a 220 pounder from Norfolk and Cardwell are among the new material that is creating favorable comment. Roane and Urney are also fighting for a place on the Varsity. A big, strong and fast team will face Maryland and is expected to give a good account of itself. The probable line up: Ends—Bell and Eason, tackle—Smoot and Kent; guards—Trillinger and Blackwell; center—Hales or Cardwell; backs—Crouse, Marks Rash, Roane, Stuart, J. McLemore, Taylor, Anderson and Urney.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN

When Mr. Myers, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, stepped into the drug store and asked his druggist for the best medicine he had in his store for woman's ills it is any wonder he was handed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Mrs. L. K. Myers in writing of it says: "I had been weak, run down and had a pain in my left side for a long time, so I went to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me in a short time so I was able to do all of my housework including washing and ironing, and now I feel fine all the time." As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for benefiting 98 out of every 100 women who take it, it will pay every suffering woman to try it.

Your Health
BY DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

MASSAGE
Massage may be called a body or skin and nerve tonic. It invigorates the body without the usual doping of any tonal medicines.

In many so-called nervous troubles it does great aid with very little exhaustion to the central nervous system. Massage also aids metabolism (the chemical process of repair and waste in the body) and does much toward muscle development. It is particularly an aid to the facial muscles, which receive little or no exercise. These may be stimulated and rounded out and the face contour improved by massage. The abdominal muscles are tightened up, aided and strengthened by massage, while the great muscles of the back and shoulders may be developed and improved by this treatment.

I am not advocating any special form or system of massage as a treatment for anything. The question at issue is the value of massage or skillful rubbing or kneading of the outer skin or muscles towards an improvement, flexibility and soothing condition of the body as a general help on the high road to health.

Of course massage is only a natural, simple process to encourage the circulation of blood and increased circulation means more blood. More blood means better supply to the tissues and cells which in many persons are little used and consequently not fully developed. A blood renewal through massage produces a healthy normal tone which the muscles and nerve system share in the general toning-up process.

ing the night because of the darkness and flood conditions.

Early this morning no list of those who perished had been obtained. Five cars and the locomotive dropped into the river.

An official message from the scene of the wreck last night told of the difficulties under which the rescuers were working and held out little hope for the many passengers known to have been in the coach and smoking cars. The engine crew and the baggage and mail employees are also believed to have lost their lives, the engine and the coaches being completely under water.

Seven doctors from Casper, dressed in injuries of those cut by glass and sustaining bruises, but reported that there was none dangerously injured. The rescue of eight persons, including women and a baby, was one of the most spectacular features of the wreck. A rope was run from the passenger car to the Glenbrook side of the creek and seven made their way to the shore by working their way over the rope, hand over hand.

An unidentified man remained on the coach until the last, directing the rescue and made the last trip by himself carrying an infant with him.

Dan J. McQuaid, of Denver, who was a passenger in the Denver sleeper, was the first to give news of the disaster and he announced that in his opinion at least 100 lives were lost. Others survivors were of the same opinion, when told by McQuaid's statement, said that the loss "would be at least that."

Several men and women managed to crawl from the coaches which plunged into the creek and clinging to the top of the cars, screamed for help, according to Henry Wyatt, of Casper, who was a passenger in a sleeper which plunged half way into the waters and remained standing on end. "Nothing could be done to save them," Mr. Wyatt declared, "as the river was a raging torrent."

"I had just started for the smoking compartment in the front end of the car when the wreck occurred. The train seemed to slacken its speed suddenly and then the car was in the water. I was in the front part resting on the bed of river and the rest pointing up in the air."

"There was no scrambling or commotion, everybody just set to work opening their windows and getting out. A sleeping car porter passed me on the bank and I counted six others beside myself who escaped."

"There were at least seven men in the smoking compartment in the front and I am sure they lost their lives."

"It appeared a cloudburst had occurred recently, as the river receded two feet before I started back for Casper."

"One of the cars in the river, about 25 feet from the bank, appeared to be only half under water. Whether this was the chair car or the smoker I don't know."

According to previous reports the smoking car was crowded with men. The local ticket agent reported he had sold 66 tickets from Casper for this train, which was made up here and was bound for Denver, where it was due at 10:05 o'clock this morning.

An official railroad message from the scene of the wreck last night was as follows:

"Sleeper standing on one end, bank caved off and sleeper fell in stream, now covered with water, one end of chair car above water. Two passengers got out of this car. Coach and smoker, baggage and mail car under water."

"Water running so high and swift unable to work from west bank, number of people on east side doing all they can to assist. Out of a total of 32 Pullman passengers on Number 23, 28 have been accounted for."

"Pullman conductor thinks two others got away safely."

"Lost porter in head sleeping car. Train conductor lost unless he got out on east side. Cannot say about engine crew. Undoubtedly considerable of passengers in smoker and coaches lost."

"Doing all we can for relief of people in coaches and smoker. Unable to make more definite report until daylight. Details later. Will need wrecker at east side, pile driver outfit complete with material for twenty spans."

This message was received from the Burlington superintendent who went to the scene of the wreck.

Clarence Goodman, of the Crucible Steel Company; R. P. Johnson of the American Steel Company, both of Denver, and Julius Gunther, prominent Republican leader of Douglas, were among those known to have taken passage on the train for Denver.

With nothing of a definite nature upon which to base a conservative estimate, railroad officials said they believed that between 55 and 65 passengers had been killed.

Four lost their lives in the Casper sleeper while the others were drowned in the day coach, smoker and baggage and express cars. The express car was completely wrecked. Engineer Spangler, Fireman Mallon and Conductor Frank Guff, of Casper, are reported to have lost their lives.

The train went through a weakened bridge over which, just two hours previously a heavily loaded freight train had passed.

The engine and tender had gone over the bridge when the collapse came and the locomotive was pulled back into a raging torrent.

The express and baggage cars together with the day coach, were carried into the flood with the forward portion of the Casper sleeper, nosing into the stream and drowning four in the smoking compartment. The Montana sleeper remained on the track and no one in it was injured. All cars except two sleepers were submerged in the flood waters.

Estimates of the number of persons who lost their lives differed at seven o'clock this morning. The lowest figures placed the dead at 40. A railroad telegraph operator at Glen Rock, near the scene of the wreck and who assisted in the rescue work, said he thought the death list might mount to 100.

All rescue work had to be temporarily abandoned at 2 o'clock this morning. It began showing about that hour after 24 hours of continuous rainfall. No bodies had been recovered at daylight.

A track walker had inspected the culvert over Cole Creek less than an hour before the passenger train was due. He reported everything all right, altho the stream was rising.

About 9:10 p. m. the Denver train went around the culvert. Apparently the locomotive got clear across the culvert before it gave way under the weight of the heavy train. Then the engine slipped back into the water and both engineer and fireman were killed.

Probably only four sleeping car passengers lost their lives by drowning. From 20 to 24 passengers were rescued from the top of the sleeper, which was partially submerged. Neither the Cheyenne nor Casper sleepers went into the stream.

A rescue train from Casper arrived at the wreck of 11 p. m. and immediately it was decided that the best chance of rescue was by means of a rope arrangement strung from the east bank.

A big cable rope obtained at the Big Muddy Oil Fields was thrown over to the moored passenger cars atop the sleeper. With the headlight of the locomotive of the relief train playing on the scene the slow process of rescue in this manner proceeded.

Men, women and children went hand in hand from the sleeper to the east bank, a distance of more than 150 feet. Several times women lost one hand-hold of the rope, only to regain their balance and save themselves from dropping into the sweeping waters.

Occupants were sleeping in the car. Aside from the two dim railroad arc lights, there was not a light visible at the scene of the wreck and it was difficult to distinguish the location of the cars in the stream.

Undertakers left Casper this morning to search the wreckage for bodies. The sheriff and deputies left on the same special train to assist in removing bodies from the wreckage.

Glen Rock police have been notified and will cooperate in preventing any looting. Clites down the Platte River have been notified to be on the lookout for floating bodies.

Death of Wealthy Society Woman Arouses Suspicion

(By The Associated Press.)

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The death of Mrs. Charles Webb, of New York and Philadelphia, society woman, which, it was learned last night, has aroused the suspicions of several Westchester county officials, will be thoroughly investigated in an effort to discover its cause, the authorities said.

Mrs. Webb, who was said to have been wealthy in her own right, died last Tuesday in the fashionable Westchester-Biltmore Country Club after an illness of three weeks. Her physician declined to issue a death certificate on the ground that death was due to uncertain circumstances.

Several relatives, including Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter, of Ilexton, Pa., who were with Mrs. Webb at the time of her death and cognizant of the alleged mysterious circumstances surrounding it demanded that an autopsy be performed. Medical experts were summoned and instructed to determine if any lethal poisons were in the body. The result probably will not be known until tomorrow.

The greatest secrecy prevailed at the club and among the dead woman's relatives and friends. Mr. Webb, who was with his wife through her illness could not be found at his home, his office or his club.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb were married November 4, last. Since that time they have lived largely in hotels, country clubs and resorts.

Mrs. Webb's private fortune is estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. It was said changes in her will had been made just prior to her death.

Though physicians working on the case would not make any statement regarding the circumstances of her death, it was said that suspicion had been aroused by bruises on the abdomen.

Mrs. Webb was the daughter of S. Jennings Gorman and the late Mrs. Gertrude A. Gorman. She was of the fourth generation that has occupied the family home in fashionable Madison avenue. Her grandfather, Edmund A. S. Smith was a financier and left large real estate holdings that still are in possession of the family.

Mr. Webb's father, the late Charles Henry Webb was as "John Paul" author and journalist. For three years he was literary editor of the New York Times and was on the Tribune under Horace Greeley. He was founded the Californian, the first literary journal of that state. His wife was a lineal descendant of Levi Holden, a lieutenant of George Washington's bodyguard.

Coroner Edward F. Fitzgerald, was frank in saying he did not believe there was anything suspicious about the death of Mrs. Webb and that if she had not been a woman of wealth no attention would have been paid to the circumstances of her death.

"I don't think there's anything to it," he said. "We have lots of cases like that. I do not know what the analysis will show of course, but I don't think it will reveal poison."

"I don't say that it won't, but I feel that there is nothing to these suspicions. However, if poison is found, I will take the matter up with the district attorney. I expect a report on the toxicologist's examination in a week or ten days. It would be impossible to make a thorough analysis in a few days."

Good Morning Judge!

Judging from the number of speeding cases on the police blotter this morning, a war has been waged by traffic officers against those who are inclined to exceed the limit. Seven such cases were disposed of as follows: John Wood, colored, fined $21 and costs; Mrs. K. C. Arcey, fined $21 and costs; S. C. Cunningham, fined $21 and costs; Clay Gardner, fined $21 and costs; and Dr. J. Luck, colored, fined $21 and costs. Charles Orchard drew a fine of $10 and costs for violating the city traffic ordinance by parking too close to a fire plug.

The only other case was a charge of creating a disturbance against Almer Austin, colored, the warrant being sworn out by James Spencer. After a long tale involving domestic difficulties, threats, skirmishes and so on, Austin was placed under a recognized bond of $250 for his good behavior towards Spencer for twelve months. Spencer was characterized by Austin as "a bad man."

CORK LEG AS BRAKE SAVES LOAD OF COAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A new use for artificial legs has been reported to the Veterans' Bureau which implies at least one advantage over the natural variety.

A claim has just been received from an Indian veteran for replacement of a cork leg destroyed recently in an emergency. The claimant says that while he was hauling coal up a hill it became necessary to brake the wheel. Lacking a brake, he took off his leg and stuck it in the wheel. The wagon was stopped, but the leg was destroyed.

Candidates For Military Academy Are Now Sought

By GEORGE H. MANNING

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 28.—Senator Carter Glass and Representatives Bland, Deal, Drewry, Moore, and Peery have been requested by the adjutant general of the army to appoint candidates for the vacancies which will occur at the U. S. Military Academy from their districts next year.

Representative Drewry, of the fourth district, will have two vacancies, and the others named one each, making a total of seven young Virginians to be named to enter West Point next July. Entrance examinations will be held in March, and all senators and representatives having vacancies have been asked to make their appointments as far in advance of the examinations as possible.

An unusually large number of vacancies will occur at the Military Academy when the present first class graduates next year, the adjutant general states. He suggests that "all qualified young men wishing to take advantage of this favorable opportunity should communicate at once with their senators and congressmen in order to assure themselves of receiving consideration for appointment." Veteran Claims To Be Victim Of Carelessness

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Two agencies of the Government yesterday opened an investigation of charges of malpractice lodged against United States Veterans' Bureau surgeons who, it is alleged, were guilty of "gross carelessness" in performing twenty-three operations on Roy C. Eaton, of Wilkesburg, Pa.

Eaton, a former corporal in Company G, Thirty-eighth Infantry of the Third division, suffered injuries to his arms in the world war. Discharged, he applied to the Veterans' Bureau for relief. He was sent to a hospital and underwent the operations.

The arm did not heal. Eaton went to a private surgeon who advised another operation. Here is what the surgeon found in the man's arm:

Two dead flies.
Some wrapping bandage.
A piece of cotton.
Some shrapnel.

The twenty-fourth operation cost the disabled veteran $2,300, no part of which he could collect from the Veterans' Bureau.

The case was reported to the Veterans' Bureau officials and to the Senate committee probing the bureau by American Red Cross representatives from Oil City, Pa. Both groups are investigating.

HOW TO STOP SORE, BLEEDING RECEDING GUMS

Dentists say that a great majority of people either have pyorrhea (Riggs Disease) or pyorrhea tendencies. The beginning is sore, receding or bleeding gums, sensitive or loose teeth, pus pockets and bad breath. Pyorrhea not only affects the gums and teeth, but also your general health, as the pus, which is very poisonous, is absorbed into the system causing serious stomach troubles, the results of which are sometimes fatal.

You can now treat pyorrhea at home and get relief with formula known as Creosene, the new discovery that, through penetration, carries a powerful but harmless germicidal, of which creosote (the greatest germ-destroying, tissue-preserving agency known and used by dentists for years) is the base, right to the roots of the teeth, killing the pyorrhea germs, making the gums healthy, tightening up and preserving the teeth, healing pus pockets, relieving pain and destroying odors caused by decayed or abscessed teeth.

Creosene is pleasant to use, and should be used by every one who wears a plate, as it keeps the gums firm and healthy and free from pain. $1.00 at your druggist and your money back if it fails. Creosene Co., Atlanta, Ga.—adv.

LEAGUE SUBMITS COMPETENCY TO HAGUE COURT OF JUSTICE

(By The Associated Press.)

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—The council of the League of Nations after a two hours debate tonight agreed to submit two questions covering the general aspects of the league's competency in international complications to the permanent court of international justice at the Hague. This was brought about by the action of the smaller states who sent a collective note to the council relative to an interpretation of the covenant.

The council also provisionally decided that two other questions shall go before a special commission of eminent jurists, rather than to the Hague court, because they are deemed to be of a political, rather than a legal nature. One concerns the right of states to adopt coercive measures, while the other endeavors to secure the fixation of a country's responsibility for crime committed in its territory.

Members of the council tonight tried to induce Signor Salandra, the Italian member, to consent to The Hague court's passing upon whether other matters, such as incidents affecting national honor, are also to be excluded, but Signor Salandra was obdurate; he said he did not want such incidents to go before the permanent court and was not sure that he wanted them to go any where.

The French are seeking to act as conciliators, believing that eventually Italy will agree to a full examination of the covenant.

M. Lebrun, a former member of the French cabinet who helped Lord Robert Cecil draft the proposed pact of mutual assistance said tonight the world should realize that its chief aim was reduction of armaments, which was only possible in most countries when their security was established. He emphasized that Great Britain, France and Italy must ratify the pact before it can be made operative in Europe.

The disarmament commission decided definitely tonight that in view of the divergencies of opinion on its contents, including the clause authorizing supplementary defensive alliances, all the governments should be requested to send in their opinions about the pact to the league. Hence any action on the pact has been postponed until the next year.

MODERN SCIENCE HELPS BRITISH CATCH CROOKS

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Scotland Yard, England's famous organization for the detection of criminals, is equipping its patrol motor cars with wireless telephone apparatus with the idea of providing new aids in the capture of wrong-doers.

In many cases swift locomotion is the essence of success in this matter, and if rapidity of movement can be combined with the maintenance of communication with headquarters, the chances of the wrong-doer's escape may be considerably diminished.

The experimental car can receive messages while creeping through the congested traffic of the city of London, while dashing along the Great North Road. It can reply to the messages received, and thus keep Scotland Yard well informed of the progress of whatever business may be in hand.

It is hoped that when the system has advanced a little farther, the constabulary forces of the counties will participate in it. Then it may be possible to set up an effective hue and cry throughout the country if a dangerous criminal is at large, and keep all searching cars in constant touch with Scotland Yard and the headquarters of the police forces of adjacent counties.

New York Again Getting Papers As It Did Before

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A complete collapse of the pressmen's strike enabled the New York morning and afternoon papers today to resume their own identities.

The restrictions voluntarily assumed by the various newspapers to use a composite title head during the continuance of the strike formally were removed today.

This action brought back to New Yorkers their familiar editorial pages and it is safe to say that never were editors read with greater avidity than today. Readers searched in vain all papers except one, however, for any editorial expression on the strike or reference to the experiences of the individual papers under their temporary resignation of identity. It was evident that some agreement had been reached, editorially, to treat the strike as non-existent and for the papers to get back to normalcy as rapidly as possible. There was further adherence today to the sixteen page limit of editions, but the papers gradually will grow during the remainder of the week.

Publishers insisted today that the idea of a composite title head for all the newspapers during the strike was a wise move. They said that the papers, under their individual names again quickly would climb back to their accustomed place in the metropolitan newspaper field and that the strike would leave no permanent marks.

It was said the submergence of identity during the strike was a significant warning not alone to the pressmen but to all the other crafts that in the stress of strike conditions, the publishers of New York City constituted a solidarity willing to go so far as loss of name, loss of editorial prestige and loss of individuality and present a solid front to the "enemy."

An expression at the head of the editorial page of the New York World tells its own story. It says: "The pressmen's strike has forced the World, together with other New York newspapers, to omit its editorial page for the past week in order that these papers might in combined solidarity continue to give the public the news. The strike situation is now fortunately such that the newspapers today resume their individual identities and with them the expression of their editorial convictions."

"The World being so deeply interested a party as regards the strike, feels that it may best be left to public opinion without editorial comment."

Restrictions as to the acceptance of advertising necessarily continues in force while the papers are limited to sixteen pages. In their effort to give the public seasonal advertising as well as current news, the papers have had to refuse department store offerings in favor of announcements of flats and houses to rent and hotels affording residential accommodations.

October first is "moving day" in greater New York. Hundreds of thousands of flat hunters were at their wits' ends with no advertisements to guide them and have been roaming the streets looking for "to let" signs. Pages of "to let" advertisements were in the papers today.

Here again came the realization of the public service character of the modern newspaper.

TEETH FIGURE IN MAN'S ACQUITTAL

(By The Associated Press.)

HENDERSON, N. C., Sept. 27.—In one of the strangest cases ever tried in Superior Court here James B. Rawls, tonight was acquitted of the charge of deserting his alleged wife, Mrs. J. B. Reid, and her children, the jury returning a verdict of not guilty on charges of desertion and non support. The case depended upon the jury's believing or not that Rawls, whose wife and 2 children were present had been able to grow a full set of teeth during the eight years that the plaintiff alleged she had been without companionship and support of her husband.

On the stand yesterday Mrs. Reid testified that Rawls was her husband but she could not account for the fact that the defendant had a full set of teeth. Eight years ago, she testified, when her husband deserted her he had no front teeth, they having been knocked out in an accident 29 years before. Her two children also identified the defendant as their father on the other hand Reid's boys were quite as positive that the defendant was not of their father, and in fact practically based it upon the condition of his teeth. Dentists who took the stand testified that Rawls's teeth were not false.

SHORTENING DAYS

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox)

The days grow shorter, the nights grow longer.

The headstones thicken along the way.

And life grows sadder, but love grows stronger.

For those who walk with us day by day.

The tear comes quicker, the laugh comes slower.

The courage is lesser to do and care.

And the tide of joy in the heart flows lower.

And seldom covers the reefs of care.

And all true things in the world seem true.

And the better things of earth seem best.

And friends are dearer, as friends are fewer.

And love is all as our sun dips west.

Then let us clasp hands as we talk together.

And let us speak softly in love's sweet tone.

For no man knows on the morrow, whether

We two pass on—or but one, alone.

THE LOSS OF THE MUTSU.

(Baltimore Sun.)

The historic role played by the Japanese battleship Mutsu at the Washington Disarmament Conference is recalled by the news that this great vessel, as well as two other Japanese superdreadnaughts, were destroyed by the effects of the recent earthquake.

At the time of the conference much surprise and a certain amount of irritation were aroused by the insistence with which the delegates from Nippon maintained that no matter what arrangements were agreed upon naval disarmament would never "scraper" the Mutsu. Gradually the reason behind this attitude became known, revealing a sentimentality not generally regarded as a factor in Japanese character.

The Mutsu, it was learned, was to Japan much more than one of the most powerful warships in the world. Named after the great Emperor Mutsu, who ruled Japan from 1867 to 1912 and was largely responsible for her remarkable rise to equality with Western nations, the Mutsu was regarded as a symbol rather than merely a great warship. In her design and construction, both purely Japanese, was seen evidence of the transformation of Japan from a backward, isolated country into a world power of the very first rank. School children, it is said, carried their pennies to help defray the cost of building and her christening partook almost of the nature of a rite. That a warship standing for so much in their history should be arbitrarily scrapped was unthinkable to the people of Japan. And so the navy treaty was revised so that Japan might keep her Mutsu.

What man would not surrender nature has now ruthlessly taken. Overnight in the tidal convulsions which followed the earthquake, the Mutsu is said to have been scrapped as completely as shipwrecked vessels are found in the wreckage of a sinking. It found itself in a great warship, and assistance which have been poured out to Japan in her hour of trial. That is worth more to her than any or all her battleships.

A THOUGHT

The poor man is hated even of his own neighbor; but the rich hath many friends.—Prov. 16:21.

AS men advance in life, all passions resolve themselves into money. Love, ambition, even poetry, end in this.—Beaumont.

THE HOME CASUALTY LIST.

The tragic accident on Paxton street, following which a six-year-old boy was carried to a hospital where he still lingers in critical condition, again brings sharply home to us the increasing dangers in a motor-ridden country. It was just one of the thousands of automobile accidents which are occurring every day helping to swell the casualty lists—fodder for the wealth of statistics which are given us periodically and which despite their fearsome total do not appear to have any effect towards curtailing them.

We mentioned the fact a few days ago that following the killing of a child who was "jay walking"—crossing a street diagonally in Roanoke—a community movement was initiated to create greater care not only on the part of the motorist but on the part of the pedestrian. Not even the concentration of thought on this subject and the extraordinary emphasis laid on the perils of street traffic has been effective for another Roanoke child was killed the day before yesterday when run over by a street car.

Times that a feeling of despondency well intentioned move.

It is the youth of the community which needs the greatest measure of protection. Adults may be counted on to take reasonable care of themselves. They are alive to these dangers far more than the child who responds to the promptings of the mind and who moves swiftly without counting the cost. Consideration of how best to prevent these accidents inevitably brings up the question of a safe place for recreation for children, the absence of which in this city has been so frequently lamented. Street playing is at best a dangerous practice. No matter how insistently parental precepts may be drilled into the mind of the girl or boy just so long as the sidewalk is the only place in which they can play the danger of repetition of the accident to which we allude will continue. Statistics may tell on deaf ears but they are still worth considering—in fact, anything which may tend to arouse a lethargic interest in the daily traffic toll will be beneficial.

A compilation of statistics made from the records of insurance companies reveal that one person in seven is either killed or injured by an accident every year; one out of every eight deaths is accidental between the ages of 20 and 60; every five minutes throughout the year one person is accidentally killed and for every accidental death there are 12 accidental injuries. More than 15,000 persons are killed each year by automobiles, and more than 40,000 suffering disabling injuries from the same cause and the average individual is liable to die from accident rather than from old age. These are fearful figures to shudder and ponder over. Yet they are not given for the first time—they are continually being given—yet death stalks silently among us unperceived, yet omnipresent, claiming his toll from year to year. Perhaps it is the very number of these accidental deaths that has made so callous or even oblivious of the growing danger.

UNUSUAL FOLK IN DAY'S NEWS

Sets Mountain Climb Record

(Special to The Bee)

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Sept. 28.—If you think you can do it—Climb 37 mountains to their peaks in 24 hours.

After which you will have broken the record just established by Norman Clyde, 38, small-town school-master of Weaverville, Calif.

That would be only one mountain more than Clyde climbed, one each consecutive day, during his recent camping hike through Glacier National Park.

On the summits of 11 of the 36 mountains he traversed, Clyde failed to find evidence of anyone else having scaled them. That's another record, say professional mountain climbers here.

Clyde's highest climb was Mt. Wilbur, whose peak rises 9253 feet above the sea level. At its summit he left as his cairn, a monument to the late Dr. Wynn, mountain climber of national fame, who had made many unsuccessful attempts to scale this height. It took him three hours to build it, a pyramid of rocks which will withstand the fiercest elements, he says.

DRAKES BRANCH, Sept. 28.—(Grapevine Wireless).—Fred Harper, mayor of Lynchburg, tells another good story: A New York broker, who is very fond of quail shooting, was a guest during last season at Bob White Lodge, a hunting lodge maintained near Brookneal, in Campbell County, by several ardent sportsmen of Lynchburg. The morning after his arrival he took one of the horses from the stable to ride about the country and through the woods, to "get the lay of the land," as he explained.

After riding some distance through the thick woods he came upon a small stream and dismounted to get a drink of the clear, sparkling water. The horse, becoming frightened at some sudden movement, ran off. He attempted to follow, but soon became confused and hopelessly lost.

After wandering aimlessly about for an hour and getting more and more bewildered, he came upon an old negro with rifle in hand, hunting squirrels.

"I say, my man," he called, "can you tell me the way to Bob White Lodge?"

"No, suh, Boss, I can't," was the reply.

"Can you tell me how to get to Brookneal?" was the next inquiry.

"No, suh, Boss, I don't know," the negro said.

"Well, can you direct me to the main road?" was the next effort.

"No, suh, Boss, I can't."

"Say," said the now exasperated broker, "you don't know anything, do you?"

"No, suh, Boss," said the negro humbly, "I don't know much. But I ain't lost."

Keeping Local Trade At Home.

Here are seven main reasons for trading locally:

1. Lower prices in middle and high-end priced goods.

3. Convenience of local stores.
4. Personal interest of the proprietor.
5. Small stocks of exclusive lines.
6. Ease of establishing credit locally.
7. Civic pride.

Look Out!

An item of news came over the wire today that excited us all here in the office. It was to the effect that a comet was speeding toward the earth at the rate of eight million or maybe it was eight billion miles a second, and that we might go smash at any moment. Much disturbed, we called John Wells on the telephone, and read the telegram.

"You say it's on the way now," asked John.

"Yep."

"And going to hit?"

"Bound to."

"Oh, well, said John, 'the way fishing has been the last month this earth isn't worth much any more. Let her hit!'"

And John hung up with a bang.

Ten years ago this month, newspaper readers found this headline prominently displayed on the front page: "U. S. Data Shows Cost of Living Rising Upward—Increased 50 Per Cent. Over Average of the Decade Between 1890 and 1900."

That was in 1913.

Today, bewildered and trying to get our bearings, we talk of 1913 as "normal." Wonder how the talk will be drifting in 1923?

HOUSEWIFE.

A New York woman files a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, stating that her debts are $143,943. Against which, she has assets of only $50—personal belongings.

She describes herself as a "housewife" by occupation.

Ten years ago, this situation would have made a big news story. Today it sets a few inches of space, buried on the financial page of a New York paper. A lot of people are overlooking a great bit by not glancing over the financial page occasionally.

BET.

Three years ago a lawyer bought 1000 German marks at seven and a half cents apiece. Paying for which he sent $1125 to bankers in Bremen, Germany. Recently he wrote to the bank to inquire about his investment. The bank, answering, informed him that his account with them was "balanced." The present value of his marks barely covers the balance.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN THROUGH WITH PIE THROWING

(By Chicago Tribune Service.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Charlie Chaplin is through with custard pies and seltzer bottles forever. The famous movie comedian said so himself, today, when he stopped in Chicago on his way to New York to attend the "first night" of his own film production, "A Woman of Paris." Charlie wrote, directed and acted the play himself.

I believe I have thrown my last pie, "was his opening gun when cornered by a score of newspaper men as he stepped from the train this morning. "I doubt if I could do it more, and unless spontaneously any more, and unless you can do a spontaneous thing, my funny walk and my mustache have disappeared also. I'd feel ridiculous if I tried to introduce them again."

"Yes, I shall go back to comedy, with a little humor of character and situation, not slapstick. The play of today must have its emotions not registered or acted, but suppressed, as in real life."

"Who's your new girl?" put in a more direct souled reporter.

"Why," exclaimed Chaplin with a smile, "I haven't seen the magazines yet. And, as the lady you speak of—there is nothing I can say."

SWALLOWED UP

By MRS. WILSON WOODROW
ILLUSTRATED BY R.W. JANTERFIELD.

He covered his head with his hands. "Well, s'posin' I do? Who shall I say it is that wants the boss—Lloyd George or Herbert Hoover?"

"Neither." The man flicked a traveling from his sleeve. "He'll probably see me quicker if you give it to him straight. Just say, my good man, that Juarez Charlie is here."

Juarez Charlie? In the face of such a designation, Number One felt his original estimate of the man fully justified. And yet there was something in that dark, obscure glance, the feeling smile on the lips mouth that overrode his settled judgment. Uncertainly he scratched his jaw.

"I don't know but what I'll take a chance on you," he finally decided. "You ain't so much worse than a lot I've had to let get by. But listen here—" with a return of authority—"If I get in wrong, you'd better not wait. I'm coming back, and if they don't want you, I'll just naturally wipe up the street with you."

As he came into the presence of Ranger's private secretary, Frank Bryan, the impulse seized him to take in the name of the rakish shuffling his feet, uncertain what to say.

"Mr. Bryan, sir, there's a—see party out there, that wants to see Mr. Ranger. He said to tell you or Mr. Ranger that Juarez Charlie—"

"Juarez Charlie?" the secretary snapped. "Why didn't you say so? Show him into the private office at once."

The bewildered guard returned to his post.

"This way, mister," he beckoned with disgruntled civility.

"Never mind." He waved Number One aside. "I know the way."

He passed on, a privileged character, exchanging a nod or two with different employees in the outer office and nodding familiarly to others; for, rolling-stones adventurer though he was, grifter and swindler as he was suspected of being, Juarez Charlie was welcome here to come and go as he pleased.

He and Loring Ranger had been boys together.

More than once the successful manufacturer had urged his old associate to take a position with him, offering Charlie his choice either inside the factory or on the road; for it was Ranger's firm belief that the vagabond, if he would only devote himself to it, would make an incomparable salesman.

But Charlie always evaded these efforts of rehabilitation.

His special gifts were various; perhaps the less said about them the better. He employed them when he felt like it and when opportunity offered; loafed when he left like it; traveled constantly about the country—sometimes first-class, sometimes in the company of eggs and boboes—boasted that he had a more comprehensive knowledge of the United States than any other man within its borders, and regarded life on the whole with a cynical, good-humored philosophy which no expediency could daunt or misfortune overwhelm.

There was an unwonted tug of sympathy at Charlie's wrinkle brow, and on a sudden impulse he stepped over and laid his hand on Ranger's shoulder.

"Tough luck, Lorry," he said bluntly. "But don't give way like this, old boy. Brace up; it isn't it isn't as if your little girl were gone for good."

The friendly touch, the sincerity of feeling in his tone brought an unexpected response. A tremor ran through the manufacturer's taut frame; then, with a groan, he dropped his head in his hands.

"It's no use, Charlie. His voice came brokenly. "No use to try and deceive myself. She is gone for good."

He turned away to hide his working face, to talk rapidly. Here at last was some one to whom he could bare all that was in his mind.

"Look at the facts, Charlie. Look at the facts. It's a month yesterday since Hope went away—was taken away, I mean—and in all that time not a word from her—not a word of her. Only this horrible silence—like a thick black curtain meeting me everywhere I turn."

ONE BY BRENTANOS—ONE BY THE RIDGEWAY COMPANY.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Hope Ranger, daughter of wealthy parents, disappeared, after having luncheon at the Plaza with her best friend, Lucia Thorne. Hope promises her mother that she will phone to her from her father's at 3 o'clock. Evening comes with no word from Hope. Mrs. Ranger feels alarmed and calls Hope's father from a dinner engagement. At first Mrs. Ranger has no misgivings but after it seems impossible to find trace of his daughter through many friends, she too feels alarmed.

But Lucia Eustace Higby, his attorney, who is a warm friend of the family, and asks for assistance in locating Hope. Higby goes to the Thorne residence to question Lucia.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

It seemed for a time, though that his promised interrogation of Lucia would have to be deferred; for on reaching the house, he rang repeatedly without arousing any response, and when a sleepy servant finally appeared to answer the bell, it required all his powers of persuasion to gain admittance.

But when Mrs. Thorne came down and he had explained the nature of his errand, she readily grasped the situation and as soon as Lucia could make a hasty toilet, sent her into the room alone.

The girl, he had to confess, seemed appalled at the news her mother had brought her and genuinely alarmed for Hope's safety.

Hope had been in fine spirits at luncheon, she said, and they had talked of a dozen things—Lucia's recent trip abroad, clothes, mutual acquaintances, both men and girls, their plans for the summer. She had teased Hope about two or three men, but Hope had merely shrugged her shoulders and laughed. "If I'm alone, Lucia," she had said, "if someone was smart enough to put me, but manage! I haven't seen the man I'd marry yet, not for a farm."

When they parted, it was with an arrangement to see each other the next afternoon, and Hope had given the slightest suggestion of anything unusual on hand. She had said something about going to the tailor's, and possibly doing a bit of shopping before she went home; that was all.

This left Higby no recourse to appeal to the police; and here he proved himself, on one score at least, a true prophet. The five thousand dollar reward he offered furnished all the incentive required to set the department going at full steam.

Within 12 hours the movements of Hope Ranger were known to a certainty. Her door at 35 minutes after 12 until a quarter past three that afternoon.

Leaving home, she had walked down the east side of the Avenue. At 15 minutes to one o'clock, she had stopped at a florist's and bought a gardenia. Then she had crossed at Fifty-ninth Street and met her friends at the Plaza, had gone with Lucia Thorne into the dining-room, remained there an hour, and left the Thorne at 10 minutes past two. At half after two, she had bought a veil in a millinery and dressmaking establishment on Fifty-seventh Street, and had been recognized and called by name by the saleswoman. From there she had gone to a bookstore and asked for a book which she had previously ordered.

She was next seen at the soda-water counter of a fruit-and-sweets shop, where she ordered a maple sundae. It was then exactly 10 minutes after three, the clerk being able to fix the time so definitely from the fact that just after he had set Miss Ranger's order before her, a disturbance had been created by a customer at the cashier's desk over a question of correct change. The altercation had become so heated that the manager of the place had been summoned.

Miss Ranger, like every one else in the shop, had turned to watch the incident, and then, when it had been settled, she finished her sundae and went out.

And from that point, the investigators ran into a blank wall. After four days of assiduous effort on the part of the police Department, aided now by an army of private detectives, no clue had been unearthed to indicate what had become of her or whether she had gone.

Mrs. Ranger was by this time under the care of physicians, ill from grief and worry; and her husband, his face lined and haggard, his straight shoulders bowed, looked 20 years older. Even Eustace Higby showed the effects of the strain.

In desperation they decided to make the facts public, and every newspaper in the country was filled with descriptions of the missing girl.

CHAPTER IV

RANGER'S pipes are known all over the world. Buy a pipe—clay, calabash, meerschaum, briar-root or what-not, and in whatever part of the globe—and the chances are ten to one that "Ranger & Co., Makers," will be found stamped on it.

The factory and salesrooms occupy a block on Seventh Avenue near Fourteenth Street, and there, as a matter of habit, Ranger continued to go daily in the attempt to win some success from anxiety by absorbing himself in the accustomed routine.

So ready was he to listen to every wild story or suggestion offered him that it had been found necessary to post guards before his office door to protect him from the invasion of cranks and impostors.

Thus, one morning, Number One of the cordon peremptorily halted a caller who had attempted to stroll by him, and who now, with too much assurance to be pleasing said that he wished to see "Ranger."

The off-hand manner, as well as the lack of the prefix of "Mister," annoyed the guard. Neither did he know the stranger's appearance, nor possessing Dark, lean, his clothes unpressed, his hat tilted, the man unworried before him.

"Ranger, eh?" with heavy sarcasm. "Well I got to tell you that the boss is busy this morning and can't see anybody—even you."

The visitor shifted his hat to another and more respectable angle, took an old pipe from his pocket and began to fill it.

"You're new here, my lad; that's plain. But if you're in doubt take my name, either to Frank Bryan or Loring himself."

The guard scowled, but wavered in his decision to throw the man out. He trusted his own impressions more than he did this airy certainty of welcome. Yet the fellow seemed so confoundedly sure.

"Ranger, eh?" with heavy sarcasm. "Well I got to tell you that the boss is busy this morning and can't see anybody—even you."

The visitor shifted his hat to another and more respectable angle, took an old pipe from his pocket and began to fill it.

"You're new here, my lad; that's plain. But if you're in doubt take my name, either to Frank Bryan or Loring himself."

The guard scowled, but wavered in his decision to throw the man out. He trusted his own impressions more than he did this airy certainty of welcome. Yet the fellow seemed so confoundedly sure.

So ready was he to listen to every wild story or suggestion offered him that it had been found necessary to post guards before his office door to protect him from the invasion of cranks and impostors.

(By The Associated Press.)
HIGH POINT, N. C., Sept. 27.—J. J. Farris, editor of the High Point News, and one of the city's most prominent men, dropped dead while talking with a friend in front of a local hotel here tonight. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Says Allenrhu Surely Conquers Rheumatism

Winchester, Ky., Citizen Cheerfully Recommends This Wonderful Remedy to All Sufferers.

His letter follows: "Burns Avenue, Winchester, Ky. I had severe rheumatism for three months, tried several remedies without receiving any benefit whatever. A friend advised me to try ALLENRHU as it had cured him. I bought three bottles from the George Drug Co., this city. When I began taking this medicine I was unable to do any work. I could neither dress myself nor raise my hand to comb my hair. I am now almost well and feel confident this last of the three bottles I am now taking will completely cure me. I can cheerfully recommend this truly wonderful remedy to any rheumatic sufferer." Signed Asa E. Keer.

ALLENRHU has been tried and tested for years and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the patient was helpless.

Agents guarantee the first pint bottle to show appreciable results. Money back in every instance. McFalls Drug Store can supply you.—adv

CLINGS TO HUSBAND

This is the best photograph yet to be published of Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, wife of Walter Ward, and their two children, since Ward went on trial at White Plains, N. Y., for his life for the slaying of Clarence Peters, former sailor. It was taken at Sutton Manor.

Judge Will Give Case To Jury On Ward's Birthday

(By The Associated Press.)
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Attorney General Sherman, the state's chief prosecutor in the trial of Walter S. Ward for the murder of Clarence Peters, of Haverhill, Mass., delivered a final appeal to the jury today in argument of the case. He spoke 3 hours and 10 minutes and the defense presented by Isaac N. Mills. Ward's chief attorney yesterday in his four hours and 15 minutes before the jury, was assailed ruthlessly by Justice Wagner will charge the jury tomorrow, and the fate of the accused will be in its hands. Tomorrow will be Ward's 32nd birthday.

Since the defense did not call witnesses but rested at the close of the prosecution's case, it will not have an opportunity for rebuttal Ward entered the courtroom smiling and in arm with his wife, a sheriff behind him. Ten minutes later his smile had disappeared under the ferocity of Sherman's attack. "Walter S. Ward killed an unarmed sailor boy," he heard the prosecutor charge.

"He framed the self defense and the black mail story," Ward was only pretending blackmail to get money out of his father, George S. Ward. "Blackmail? hokum! He fooled his attorneys, they found out and are ashamed to admit it. Fear drove Ward to disclose that he killed Peters. If the boy's body hadn't been identified, four days after his death, the lips of Ward, police commissioner of New Rochelle, would have remained sealed to this day."

Mrs. Ward, too, smiled as she took her place behind her husband, inside the rail. She nodded pleasantly to women friends who greeted her and confided to some that the mail had brought sixty letters of sympathy from other women all over the land. Since the trial began she had received nearly 3,000 such letters, she said. Most, but not all, of the praising her for remaining staunch to her husband.

"When a lawyer has no defense he tosses a smoke screen and gets out of his camouflage," the state's attorney general began. The whole long summation by the defendant's counsel was a pitiful demonstration against the damaging and conclusive evidence submitted by the state.

"Supposing a man kills another in his office, the gives himself up, saying, 'I am a general.' The whole long summation by the defendant's counsel was a pitiful demonstration against the damaging and conclusive evidence submitted by the state."

Babson Asserts Slow Payments Hinder Business

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept. 27.—Roger W. Babson has been making a careful analysis of credit conditions based on reports from his various correspondents throughout the United States. His findings reported today are of unusual interest to all business men and investors.
Careful students of the financial situation are surprised at the conditions of the Reserve Ratio Figures of the Federal Reserve Banks and the similar figure for the New York Banks," says Mr. Babson. "With the tremendous amount of gold in the country, and with new gold constantly being mined, it seems strange that this figure should decrease. Furthermore, even although this is the crop moving season there seems no logical reason why our banks should put out additional currency. There is an abundance of money in the country for all legitimate needs. The only difficulty is that too much of it is being used in illegitimate ways, and too much is being hoarded in sections where it is not needed. The country does not need to issue more money, but the farmers and legitimate business in need of money for every legitimate need in every line of industry."

"Yet this situation in stocks and commodities does not account for the clogging which is taking place today in our credit system. Of the various reasons advanced I believe the fundamental difficulty is due to the fact that people are not paying their bills. Ever since the decline in business, which began a few months ago, there has been a tendency for manufacturers, jobbers, retailers, and consumers to slow up in their payment of bills. Of course the whole thing is an endless chain. Just as soon as one link stops the entire chain must stop. Yet there is absolutely no reason for such action. It is a psychological or moral condition rather than an economic condition. Business and the flow of money is like the flow of blood in one's veins. Anything which retards circulation harms everyone."

"An analysis of the balance sheets of our large industries shows that they are very largely 'made or unmade' by their 'accounts receivable' which is simply the accountant's name for money owed to them. For instance, the fertilizer business, as a business, is perfectly sound and more fertilizers needed but they are needed more every year. It is a fundamental industry and yet most of the fertilizer companies are having very hard times at the present time, and their securities are selling very low. The reason primarily is that farmers are buying fertilizers on credit and are not paying their bills. The chain stores, on the other hand, are very flourishing today. Before the war they were selling high. The main reason for this is that these chain stores are doing a cash business. They have no 'accounts receivable' and are able to discount their bills and carry large cash balances."

"In the case of almost every corporation the credit policy is an important factor and any investor buying securities today should give it careful consideration. This is especially true today when industrial stocks are so much more popular than railroads and public utility stocks. Notwithstanding their troubles the railroads and public utilities do a cash business. This applies not only to transportation companies, but also to lighting and telephone companies."

"All of this means that one of the best things we can do to bring back prosperity is to promptly pay our bills. Moreover, the applies to the workers as well as to the manufacturers, to people in small country towns as well as to people in the large cities. The little bills must be paid before the big ones can be paid. Before the manufacturer can pay his bills, the wholesaler must pay the manufacturer; before the jobber can pay the wholesaler, the retailer must pay the jobber, and before the retailer can pay the jobber, the consumer must pay the retailer. Prompt settlement will do much toward keeping the business from going lower. The Babson chart now shows it at 10 per cent. below normal."

Explain Doctrine Of Naval Vessels Regarding Leader

(By The Associated Press)
SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 27.—More complete exposition of the "destroyer doctrine" by which officers are trained to follow the leader occupied a large share of today's session of the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster in which six vessels trailed the U. S. S. Delphy to destruction on the rocks off Honda, California, September 22. Twenty-three lives were lost in the crash. A declaration that this doctrine of "do and dare and follow the leader," was responsible for the success of American destroyer squadrons in the world war was drawn from one defendant witness today by Admiral Wm. V. Pratt, presiding member of the court, "in order," the admiral explained, "to forestall any misconception of the spirit which motivates the officers of the destroyer squadron" in facing full tilt behind their flagship whenever it may lead.

Commander William S. Pye, division chief in the squadron that was wrecked, testified that at one point on the voyage down the coast from San Francisco, he had noted that the Delphy was steering a course that would soon lead them into danger, but he had hardly reached the conclusion that the course was dangerous before she signalled a swerve into safer waters.

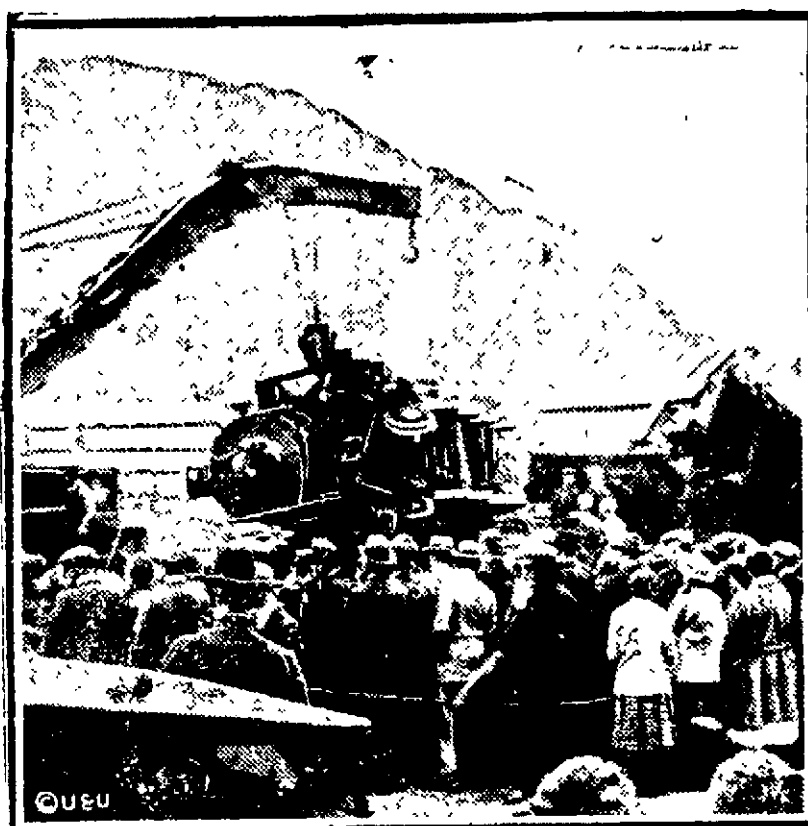

Commander L. P. Davis, of the U. S. S. Woodbury, fourth in line when the crash came, corroborated previous testimony to the effect that navigators of vessels astern of the Delphy saw no reason for alarm in the course he was steering. He said there was no justification for them in "destroyer doctrine," had they chosen to question it.

"Destroyer doctrine," explained Commander Davis, seeks to imbue in the officers of a squadron the spirit and ideas of the squadron leader and seeks to make them always ready to follow him without question."

ESCAPED MONKEY TURNS UP IN COLLEGE DORMITORY

ROANOKE, Sept. 26.—The escaped monkey which led local officers a merry chase on Mill Mountain Sunday, turned up yesterday in the dormitory of Virginia College. It horrified the women there who called for help. Soon Dr. W. P. Weaver, a veterinary surgeon, appeared with a lasso which he whirled at the little fellow and fastened on him the first time he tried. Dr. Weaver will try to get in touch with the proprietors of the Zoo and the Police shows, from which the animal escaped at the Great Roanoke Fair last week, and return him. A reward is understood to have been offered.

Legislation For Vets Will Rank At Next Congress

By GEORGE H. MANNING
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—Legislation for the World War Veterans of the United States will take rank along with farm relief measures, coal and railroad matters in the coming session of Congress as one of the most important subjects to be dealt with.

According to the latest indications, there will be at least a half a dozen proposals of great importance to all the war veterans and ex-service men of the country presented to Congress, with powerful backing arguing strongly for their passage.

Within the present week, President Coolidge has been asked by General Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, to include in his message to Congress a recommendation for the adoption of a plan for admitting all ex-service men to government hospitals free of charge at any time they may need treatment, regardless of the origin of their sickness or disability. This would be one of the greatest benefits yet granted to the four and a half million ex-service men of the country, in the opinion of leaders of veterans' organizations.

At the same time, the president was pressed by a delegation of officers of the Veterans of Foreign Wars with a program of seven measures favored by that organization, which he was urged to include also in his recommendations to Congress. In the meantime, the Disabled American Veterans' organization has been working actively for several months on a campaign to secure the support of members of Congress for the legislative program which was adopted at the annual convention of the body held in June.

Several of the members of the House, who saw active service during the war, are also understood to have been devoting considerable time during the recess to laying their plans for veterans' relief programs which they intend to push. While, of course, a number of the most influential leaders in both the House and Senate have given a great deal of thought to working out plans for a soldier bonus bill which will provide its own means of finance.

While the program of the Disabled Veterans' organization is an extremely thorough and comprehensive one, comprising thirty-five distinct measures, many of these deal largely with comparatively minor details of administration of veterans' legislation. The leading features of this program are nearly identical with the measures recommended to the president this week by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The bonus, or adjusted compensation bill; opening of government hospitals to all ex-service men of all wars for treatment at any time regardless of the source of disability; the establishment of a committee in the House of Representatives to handle all legislation dealing with veterans' legislation; the codification of Veterans' Bureau laws and the unification of rating scales for compensation and vocational training; and the enactment of adequate legislation for the relief of all veterans of all wars, giving especial attention to the disabled and maimed, are the principal provisions outlined for the president by General Lloyd M. Brett, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. In addition, any further decreases in the army and navy are opposed; and the enactment of strict naturalization and immigration laws advocated.

The passage of bonus bill is generally regarded as practically certain, the only question being which one of the several methods of providing for its payment will be adopted. It is probable, however, that a sales tax will be provided, this being the method favored by Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

The provision of hospital treatment for all veterans, with the support of General Hines, is not believed likely to encounter serious opposition. Estimates of the expense of carrying the program into effect will be placed before Congress by ex-service organizations' leaders, as well as by the Veterans' Bureau, and, according to General Hines, the cost will not be very great until after the bureau has completed the hospitalization of its present patients, which will not be for some time yet.

Sarazen Now Ready To Meet Cruickshank

(By The Associated Press.)
PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Having passed Jim Barnes in his effort to win his second Professional Golfers' Association championship, Gene Sarazen of Briar Cliff Manor, today will meet Robert Cruickshank, the shortest of the round Walter Hagen, whose progress through the week has been easy has disposed to George McLean, of Bronxville.

Sarazen had an interesting engagement yesterday with Jim Barnes but won from the elongated pro at the 36th hole with a birdie.

Cruickshank had to go to the thirty-ninth hole to defeat Willie MacFarlane of Oak Ridge, who had squandered the match with a birdie at the 36th.

Hagen won easily 5 and 4 from Fred McLeod, of Washington and George McLean eliminated Joe Kirkwood by the same score.

RECESS TAKEN BY

YARBROUGH JURY

(By The Associated Press.)

MACON, Sept. 27.—The jury deliberating on the case of Dr. C. A. Yarbrough charged with riot in connection with the flooding of W. C. Barnett, late tonight took a recess until tomorrow without reaching a verdict. At 11 o'clock the jurors had deliberated for 31 hours.

Other pending flooding cases today were postponed. Solicitor Moore announced to the court that one of chief witnesses Melton Britt, in the case against J. C. Alexander had disappeared and the state would be unable to go to trial at this time.

Solicitor Moore said that all flooding cases would probably go over until December unless Judge Gunn decided to call a special term in November.

HORNSBY BELIEVES HE HAS

RECEIVED JUST DEAL (By The Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—Belief that his $500 fine and indefinite suspension imposed for refusing to play in yesterday's game with Brooklyn is "merely a fine excuse to play me on the trading block this winter," was expressed tonight by Rogers Hornsby, second baseman of the St. Louis Nationals.

Hornsby, who claims he was dealt with unjustly, made the statement despite repeated announcements by Sam Breadon, president of the club that Hornsby would not be sold or traded.

PARIS SHOPS PICKETED

STRIKING MODISTES

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, Sept. 26.—There is a "help wanted" sign and three gendarmes at the door of every one of the most famous Paris millinery shops. Disturbed foreign and French fashions, including Madame La Marchese Joffe, are in distress because delivery of hats promised for certain dates is now indefinitely held up. The French Minister of Labor himself is doing the best he can for the strikers, but the modistes are still on strike.

While employers are hesitating to pay $675 a week, modistes today attempted to picket the millinery shops in the neighborhood of the Madeleine and along the Rue de la Paix.

"Circulez mademoiselles circulez gendarmes," is exhortation paternally on every corner where groups of mod-

DANVILLE'S BANKING HISTORY

Some interesting history of the Danville banking service was revealed on Tuesday night at the annual rally of the American Institute of Banking which Wilbur S. Randleman, assistant cashier of the Commercial Bank, read a paper prepared from data he had secured. Mr. Randleman traced the course of financial institutions in Danville from the first town recorded and traced their development up to the present day. After his opening remarks, Mr. Randleman unfolded the following history:

The first bank in Danville was the Virginia Bank which occupied a part of a dwelling upon a location, upon the corner of what is now Bank Alley opposite the Elks Home.

In the year 1890 we had the following banks in Danville:
Borden Grange, 511 Main street.
Citizens Saving Bank, 205 Riverside Block.
Commercial Bank, 407 Main street.
Johnston & Cheek, 424 Main street.
Merchants Bank, 512 Main street.
Wm. S. Patton, Sons & Co., 302 Main street.
Planters National Bank, 501 Main street.

The above banks have either failed or merged with one another and the old Commercial is the only one remaining intact of the lot.

Then we come to the year 1907—the year of the great panic—I wonder if any of you present remember those strenuous days? We couldn't get any cash money for a time. New banks had the lid closed tight on the currency market—so the banks here got together and had their own money printed which was called "Script" and on December 2, 1907, the following banks were here:

The First National Bank—J. R. Jopling, president; Allan Culler, cashier.
Commercial Bank—Jno. F. Risson, president; Chas. L. Booth, cashier.
Bank of Danville—D. A. Overby, president; W. E. Griggs, cashier.
Union Exchange Bank—W. W. Williamson, president; W. Tredway Gravelly, cashier.
Home Savings Bank—A. M. Southall, president; W. H. Barker, cashier.

Peoples Savings Bank & Trust Co.—R. L. Dibreil, president; W. S. Patton, cashier.

Johnston & Cheek (a private bank)—Chas. L. Holland and E. B. Meade, owners.

The combined capital of the above banks together with securities worth one-third more than the amount of "Script" issued was the security behind the issue of the "Script" and each piece at interest at 2 per cent per annum—no doubt some of you younger bankers are wondering what became of this "Script"? It was cleared same as your clearings today through the First National Bank, which kept the record—after being rechecked, the interest figured—

Dr. W. J. Mayo

Makes Statement

On Cure of Cancer

(By The Associated Press.)

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 28.—At a meeting of the general staff of the Mayo clinic, held a few days ago, Dr. W. J. Mayo referred to recent newspaper comment on his remarks made with regard to the present status of the cancer problem, quoting him as declaring, in substance, that there was no cure for cancer. In the course of a lecture in London in July Dr. Mayo said, "There is no medical cure for cancer" in other words, no medicine taken internally will cure the disease. Continuing, he said that a great deal of experimental work was in progress in all parts of the world, all of which gradually was adding important knowledge concerning this serious disease, but, unfortunately, these investigations, which have not as yet any direct application to human subjects.

Dr. Mayo, in his talk to his staff, said that the cure of cancer depends on diagnosis and removal at the earliest possible time. In some manner, the latter must be taught to understand these truths. Experience in the Mayo clinic has been that 71.5 per cent of patients operated on for cancer when the disease is still localized, that is, has not extended beyond the primary focus, are cured by operation, and the large majority of the remainder greatly benefited, and many have been cured even when the disease had extended beyond the primary focus.

Surgical operation is the only method of removal to be seriously considered, Dr. Mayo continued, because it permits removal, with the growth, of surrounding tissues and glands that may have become involved in the disease. The X-ray, radium, and other agents have a field of usefulness in connection with surgery, but a patient should not be subjected to X-ray, radium or other similar treatment without careful consultation with a surgeon, if such agents are used while the patient is still in the hands of a surgeon, the resulting dose change can be indefinitely surgical operation and may perhaps prevent it. Radiotherapy and other treatment in the hands of a surgeon, or those whose treatment is limited to any type of treatment, is an enormous amount of harm.

Lacking knowledge, these patients are not able to differentiate and apply the method which would show to be the best method suited to the individual patient.

Dr. Mayo now permits these statements to be made public in the hope that the public will be made aware of the fact that the Mayo clinic has been in this country since his arrival in 1890. He has since that time cured a number of patients of cancer, and he has been successful in curing a large number of patients of cancer, and he has been successful in curing a large number of patients of cancer.
